Another reason why Blue Cross-Blue Shield is your best protection

No tixed dollar limit hospital room and board

In most cases of hospitalized illness your Standard Blue Cross program pays the full cost of your semiprivate room and board. (If you're in a private room, you get an allowance equal to the hospital's average semi-private room and board charge.)

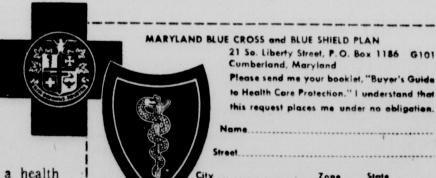

Ordinary hospitalization policies, by contrast, set a fixed dollar limit on hospital room and board benefits. A typical program might allow $10 or $15

a day. But the semi-private hospital room and board charge could easily amount to $20 a day. Who pays the difference? You do . . . out of your own pocket.

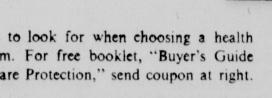

Full coverage of your semi-private room and board costs (and a liberal private room benefit) is another reason why Blue Cross-Blue Shield is your best protection against the cost of hospital and medical care.

Frostburg And The University

After a year of discussion, legislative action on the Warfield plan for the expansion of the University of Maryland has been deferred pending further study. The plan, it will be recalled, recommends conversion of the state teachers colleges at Frostburg, Towson and Salisbury into branches of the university.

Although the full application of the program to the three colleges is not likely to become possible for at least two years, several persons interested in increasing the opportunities for higher education in Western Maryland have proposed the immediate inclusion of the Frostburg college in the university system.

This proposal is an excellent one, full of promise for Western Maryland. The college at Frostburg would become a fully accredited branch of the university, its liberal arts curriculum would be greatly expanded, and still it would continue to train teachers. The Warfield recommendations, if applied at Frostburg, would continue the free tuition now granted students who enroll in the teacher training course. Some increase in room and board fees could be expected, but this would be far outweighed by the increased advantages of having a branch of the university located in Allegany County.

Students who wanted to become teachers would find it convenient to do so, while for other students, there would be opened a whole new field of educational opportunity heretofore denied in this area. Certainly this would encourage more high school graduates in the Western Maryland counties to further their education. There are other advantages, many of them intangible. Educational facilities are one of the major items of consideration for any prospective new industry, and sentiment favoring expansion of educational opportunities has been expressed repeatedly by industrial leaders in the area.

The Cumberland News believes that such a program could only be a boon to Western Maryland. Perhaps if local support develops rapidly into action, the General Assembly can and will apply the Warfield recommendations to the college at Frostburg before the present legisla-

These Days

The President And Gold

What President Kennedy said at his first press conference about gold is correct but should be have said it? It would seem to me that any statement on gold should be sudden, without warning so that the speculators have no impetus to drive up the price. Much of our troubles arise from the speculative activities on the London

The United States purchases gold at $35 an ounce. The price Friday on the London market was $35.43 an ounce. The speculative price has been as high as over $40 an ounce.

Gold these days is mined principally in South Africa and Soviet Russia. There is small mining in the United States. Canada and elsewhere but these account for so little that they need not enter into any calculation. The South African gold is extremely important and the American companies interested in the mineral have made huge investments in South African mines. However, as the speculative price of gold is higher than the American price, little, if any, of the South African product has, in recent months, come to this country. It is consumed mostly by European banks and individuals. Also, the Japanese have been buying gold.

The United States needs gold to provide a 25 per cent coverage for its currency. It has recently been losing gold too rapidly and in too great quantities for economic safety. There are, of course, those who do not believe in a gold basis for money and who do believe in fiat money despite the frightful experience of other countries with inflationary procedures. One cannot argue with such persons because they refuse to recognize what has been true since ancient Egypt and Babylon that the human race traditionally and historically recognizes money as good when backed by gold and inadequate when not backed by gold.

In the United States, there has often been some opposition to gold. Probably the most effective of the anti-gold movements was the Populist Party which developed in the Middle West in opposition to Wall

The principal proponent of Populism was William Jennings Bryan, who ran on the Democratic ticket for President three times and was thrice defeated. He wanted the ratio of silver to gold to be 16 to one and his effort was popularly called "The Free Silver Move-The Western farmer wanted what he called cheap money to move his crops, but cheap money could not have developed American industry which was borrowing money all over the world to get going. In 1890, a new process was developed for the processing of gold which made the mineral more accessible. Between the Administrations of William McKinley and Franklin D. Roosevelt, the United States remained on the gold standard and American money was sound and hard. Franklin D. Roosevelt went off the gold standard and the Supreme Court upheld him in the Gold Repeal

Nevertheless, the United States developed into the largest possessor of gold, holding a hoard of $24,500,000,000 at one time. This has now deteriorated into about $17,000,000,000 which is inadequate. The problem is to restore the American gold hoard to at least $18,000,000,000 to protect the dollar, to bring back to the United States about $20,000,000,-000 of "hot money"-money out of circulation now resting in many parts of the world and to restore respect for our currency universally. This will not be achieved by a Task Force of a lot of professors who do not understand the operations of money

One such professor wrote me that nobody needs actual currency to move money from the United States to some other country because letters of credit and such devices move money, but the professor apparently did not understand the nature of "hot money," of untaxed money, of bootleggers and heroin dealers' money. He apparently does not understand the nature of the tax havens and what they do to American currency. These are matters that the President must deal with if our gold is to be recaptured or if new gold is to be brought in. To announce a fixed date when the problem will be dealt with is to stimulate speculation, to raise the price of gold in the London market which means that more gold will seep out of the United States. The best way to handle a sensitive commodity like gold is to be absolutely silent about it—but absolutely.

nedy, a former PT boat commander, had occasion to jump on the Navy's neck within a few hours after he became commander-in-chief.

Kennedy read a report in this column that the Navy had sent lobbying propaganda, in the name of Adm. Arleigh Burke, to foreign naval attaches in Washington in an effort to enlist their aid in undercutting the proposed Symdefense reorganization plan. This amounted to using foreign nations to intervene in a purely domestic matter and a civilian matter at that. This is unprecedented

At his direction. White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger phoned the Pentagon to find out whether this column had told the truth about the Navy's attempt to line up foreign governments against the reorganization plan.

Art Sylvester, the new assistant defense secretary in charge of public affairs, promptly called the Navy's press chief. Rear Adm. Dan Smith, on the carpet.

Dutifully, Smith brought copies of the Navy propaganda that had been sent to foreign embassies and acknowledged that Adm. Arleigh Burke, the Navy chief, had

Battle Of Two Old Men The battle between two old men - Sam Rayburn of Texas, 79, and Howard Smith of Virginia, 78, to see which will control the House of Representatives reaches its showdown vote today. Technically, the battle is over the right of the Rules Committee, of which

Smith is chairman, to bottle up

bills and prevent them from coming to the House floor for a full

In real fact, the battle is over the question of whether the Kennedy program shall be passed. If the bottleneck inside the Rules Committee is not broken there will be no federal aid to education, no minimum wage, no medical aid for the aged, no slum clearance, and no depressed areas

Inside fact is that Speaker Rayburn could have passed his revision of the Rules Committee if he had acted three weeks ago. But he procrastinated. Mr. Sam has the reputation for being tough, but is a softie at heart. During his delay the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the American Farm Bureau, American Medical Association. National Association of Real Estate Boards. the National Lumber Association. and the power companies began pouring the heat on individual

Congressmen. Their argument was that the Rules Committee must have the power to block legislation in order to prevent Congress from passing a new civil rights bill. This was camouflage. Actually the rules committee has permitted two civil rights bills to pass. What the lobbyists were really aiming at was to block the Kennedy program. The AMA didn't want medical aid to the aged. The National Association of Real Estate Boards didn't want slum clear-

Rains refused. Multiply this type of pressure in every Southern state and many Northern states and you'll get an idea of the backstage lobbying battle to block the Kennedy program as the Rules Committee change comes up for a showdown vote today.

In Capitol Cloakrooms

If Sam Rayburn wins his battle to add two Democrats and only one Republican to the Rules Committee in order to break the Smith bottleneck, the two Democrats probably will be Carl Elliott of Jasper, Ala., and George Miller of Alemeda, Calif. the new Republican will be Katharine St. George of Tuxedo Park, N. Y. She is Congresswoman for the Rockefeller family, and a moderate conservative. Because of two GOP vacancies on the Rules Committee, two other Republicans will be appointed - H. Allen Smith of Glendale, Calif., and Elmer J. Hoffman of Wheaton, Ill., both conservatives.

Georgia's venerable Carl Vinson is working hard to persuade Southern Democrats not to desert Rayburn. Two Texas Democrats who will desert their fellow Texan in this his most important showdown are John Dowdy of Athens and O. Fisher of San Angelo.

Rules Committee First Hurdle In New Frontier WASHINGTON By Joseph Alsop

Last Friday evening, the conservative Republican - Southern Democratic coalition had an expected total of 221 votes-or three votes more than a bare majority -against the enlargement of the House Rules Committee.

What the position will be when these words are published cannot be accurately predicted by anyone at all, including the leaders of this bitter fight in the House of Representatives. The House is not like the Senate, where hard counters can get a hard count. In the much larger house, there are at least thirty members with the approximate characteristics of fronds of seaweed, bending and swooping with every current that presses on them.

When there are thirty seaweedvotes the final result is always unpredictable, if those who seem to have the lead can only claim a margin of four votes. In the present case the result is extraunpredictable, since the currents tossing the seaweed have the force that is only generated by the greatest storms. One current may be described as the massed, concentrated power of American ultra-conservatism. The other current is the full power of a newly elected President.

Superficially, the questions to be decided are simple enough. Will the veteran Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn of Texas, secure the enlargement of the Rules Committee which will give him a majority? Or will enlargement be refused, leaving control of the committee, and therefore control of the business of the House of Representatives, in the linked hands of House Minority Leader Charles Halleck and Rules Committee Chairman Howard K.

Smith of Virginia: But the questions to be decided are not that simple, if looked at more closely. For the Republicans, for instance, the real question is pretty serious. Will the Republican party ever carry a represented by an open alliance between its own hardshell rightwingers and the South's ultrasegregationists?

Many Republicans give the answer implied in a remark attributed to the Chairman of the National Committee, Senator Thruston Morton of Kentucky. "President Kennedy." Morton is reputed to have said, "has preempted the center." This clearly means that the Republicans must move, at least a little, in the direction pointed by Senator Barry Goldwater of New Mexico. But there are other Republicans, like New York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller, who may not enjoy the idea of a Halleck-Goldwater party locked in a permanent em-

national election, if it is nationally of Rules Committee Chairman

For President Kennedy, meanwhile, the real question involved in the Rules Committee fight is not just serious: it is almost a life-and-death question. The question for Kennedy, in fact, is whether even the bare, previously gnawed bones of the new administration's domestic program will have a reasonable chance to become law this year.

The point is that even in the last session, measures like the depressed areas bill and the school construction bill commanded a House majority of only about twenty votes. But since the last session, the Democratic majority in the House has dropped by twenty votes. Add a Rules Combrace with southerners of the type mittee that is still controlled by

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

FANCY RHETORIC - Senate Republican leader Everett Dirksen, of Illinois, has become a favorite of the press galleries because his flowery language is so far out it never fails to amuse. He had a birthday recently, and in reply to a senator's note of

The organ, one of the largest in the United States, is located in a Washington building that is to be torn down to make way for another government structure. It has 6,000 pipes, some of them 60 feet high, four keyboards, and an exceptional tone range. Organ enthusiasts claim that while it's a monstrosity, it is also one of the finest and biggest in the country.

It hasn't been played in 20 years. So far the military chaplains service, and Maryland U. have declined to accept it because of the cost of moving it, and difficonservative Republican-Southern Democratic coalition. Add, also, the psychological shock of a victory for this combination.

The truth is that the whole Kennedy program can perhaps be blocked if the House votes against enlargement of the Rules Committee. This is, of course, exactly what Representatives Halleck and Smith are aiming for. Since the new President is entirely aware of how much is at stake, however, the White House has moved all its big battalions into the fight

As these words are written, all the resources of Presidential authority have been mobilized, in the former manner of Franklin Roosevelt, in order to secure a favorable outcome. As these words are written, the President himself has not yet taken to the telephone, as the predecessor he most admires used to do when the outlook was really bad. Speaker Rayburn, long used to doing business in other ways, has advised against it. Yet this too may happen before the issue comes to a

Avoidance of a vote is the natural aim, both of the Southern Democrats and the conservative Republicans. The latter do not wish to dramatize their alliance. The former do not wish to be cut off from all patronage and all the other perquisites of members of the majority party-and the Southern Democrats know that Kennedy is quite grim enough to cut them off without mercy, if it suits him to do so. Speaker Rayburn has flirted with compromise solutions, so a record vote may perhaps be avoided.

ment is Theodore J. Flicker, who is director-producer-actor and emcee, and the subjects tackled in these brief flings are fresh. For instance, Mr. Flicker will remind us that little Caroline Kennedy suddenly appeared in her mother's shoes at one of her father's press conferences at home. Then, they'll do a skit with Joan Darling playing little Caroline and turning out to be the brains of the family, advising her father on who to appoint - Harvard professors "and stuff like that." It's a funny idea that it's Caroline, not old Joe, that's masterminding the family and it will probably be dropped if it gets stale. That's the great advantage of a show as fluid and flexible as this one. It can keep

The four players at The Premise, for instance, do a very funny skit of the American movies about Nazis made in 1943 as opposed to the movies made about Nazis now. As done then, every German is a schweinhund; now there's only one Nazi and all the other Germans deplore him as much as we do. There is very sharp, penetrating, aseptic humor about the Kennedys, that cruise ship that's been pirated. David

Susskind interviewing Khrushchev, the first woman doctor in the White House, a poor little nation trying to join the atomic club and being turned down because it is irresponsible. Castro shaving his beard, the admission of Red China to the U. N., and the popu-

By the time you get down to see them, some of these topics might have been dropped for new However, there are some fairly permanent ones. The one about God and the magician trying to get into heaven (the magician has a better magic act) is great fun and also about as irreverent as you can get. Another skit I found delicious and complex and adult and very funny was that about a girl in analysis learning how to play chess and putting each move into psychiatric terms.

There are some weak spots but not many. Reading the first night reviews (it opened November) it seems the show has deepened and broadened and got more polished. There's an abundance of material I don't think the first nighters

Since Broadway has got so square - what few jokes you'll hear on Broadway sound thoroughly researched to be sure they won't offend anyone from Dubuque - the Greenwich Village basements, the Shelley Bermans, the Bob Newharts, the Nichols, and Mays are the only people who make comment on life around us. Especially life around us right

Some of these kids did this sort of thing originally at an enchanting little night spot called The Crystal Palace in St. Louis which I visited one night. The entertainment in saloons is acquiring a fresh impetus, a fresh cutting edge. The stimulation at The Premise is entirely cerebral; they serve nothing stronger than coffee and the prices are very reasonable. That probably means they'll be raided by the police or the fire department, both of which seem intent on closing up anything in the Village that isn't serving liquor.

It is surprising how many mothers of young tots prefer to do volunteer work for hospitals and charitable institutions. This is a wonderful idea but not when a disinterested third party is entrusted with the care of their offspring day after day. It is ironical that a mother who is needed at home spends the day assisting nurses and physicians in a children's pediatric ward

She walks out of her own home to work with less fortunate youngsters in order to push her way into a higher echelon of society. The child at home becomes "the poor little rich boy" and it is unfortunate how many miss the joys of childhood thru lack of love and affection from the parent.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Notixed dollar limit hospital room and board

In most cases of hospitalized illness your Standard Blue Cross program pays the full cost of your semiprivate room and board. (If you're in a private room, you get an allowance equal to the hospital's average semi-private room and board charge.)

Ordinary hospitalization policies, by contrast, set a fixed dollar limit on hospital room and board benefits. A typical program might allow $10 or $15 a day. But the semi-private hospital room and board charge could easily amount to $20 a day. Who pays the difference? You do . . . out of your own pocket.

Full coverage of your semi-private room and board costs (and a liberal private room benefit) is another reason why Blue Cross-Blue Shield is your best protection against the cost of hospital and medical care.

Frostburg And The University

After a year of discussion, legislative action on the Warfield plan for the expansion of the University of Maryland has been deferred pending further study. The plan, it will be recalled, recommends conversion of the state teachers colleges at Frostburg, Towson and Salisbury into branches of the university.

Although the full application of the program to the three colleges is not likely to become possible for at least two years, several persons interested in increasing the opportunities for higher education in Western Maryland have proposed the immediate inclusion of the Frostburg college in the university system.

This proposal is an excellent one, full of promise for Western Maryland. The college at Frostburg would become a fully accredited branch of the university, its liberal arts curriculum would be greatly expanded, and still it would continue to train teachers. The Warfield recommendations, if applied at Frostburg, would continue the free tuition now granted students who enroll in the teacher training course. Some increase in room and board fees could be expected, but this would be far outweighed by the increased advantages of having a branch of the university located in Allegany County.

Students who wanted to become teachers would find it convenient to do so, while for other students, there would be opened a whole new field of educational opportunity heretofore denied in this area. Certainly this would encourage more high school graduates in the Western Maryland counties to further their education. There are other advantages, many of them intangible. Educational facilities are one of the major items of consideration for any prospective new industry, and sentiment favoring expansion of educational opportunities has been expressed repeatedly by industrial leaders in the area.

The Cumberland News believes that such a program could only be a boon to Western Maryland. Perhaps if local support develops rapidly into action, the General Assembly can and will apply the Warfield recommendations to the college at Frostburg before the present legisla-

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The President And Gold

What President Kennedy said at his first press conference about gold is correct but should he have said it? It would seem to me that any statement on gold should be sudden, without warning so that the speculators have no impetus to drive up the price. Much of our troubles arise from the speculative activities on the London

The United States purchases gold at $35 an ounce. The price Friday on the London market was $35.43 an ounce. The speculative price has been as high as over $40 an ounce

Gold these days is mined principally in South Africa and Soviet Russia. There is small mining in the United States. Canada and elsewhere but these account for so little that they need not enter into any calculation. The South African gold is extremely important and the American companies interested in the mineral have made huge investments in South African mines. However, as the speculative price of gold is higher than the American price, little, if any, of the South African product has, in recent months, come to this country. It is consumed mostly by European banks and individuals. Also, the Japanese have been buying gold.

The United States needs gold to provide a 25 per cent coverage for its currency. It has recently been losing gold too rapidly and in too great quantities for economic safety. There are, of course, those who do not believe in a gold basis for money and who do believe in fiat money despite the frightful experience of other countries with inflationary procedures. One cannot argue with such persons because they refuse to recognize what has been true since ancient Egypt and Babylon that the human race traditionally and historically recognizes money as good when backed by gold and inadequate when not backed by gold.

In the United States, there has often been some opposition to gold. Probably the most effective of the anti-gold movements was the Populist Party which developed in the Middle West in opposition to Wall

The principal proponent of Populism was William Jennings Bryan, who ran on the Democratic ticket for President three times and was thrice defeated. He wanted the ratio of silver to gold to be 16 to one and his effort was popularly called "The Free Silver Movement." The Western farmer wanted what he called cheap money to move his crops, but cheap money could not have developed American industry which was borrowing money all over the world to get going. In 1890, a new process was developed for the processing of gold which made the mineral more accessible. Between the Administrations of William McKinley and Franklin D. Roosevelt, the United States remained on the gold standard and American money was sound and hard. Franklin D. Roosevelt went off the gold standard and the Supreme Court upheld him in the Gold Repeal Joint Resolution decision.

Nevertheless, the United States developed into the largest possessor of gold, holding a hoard of $24,500,000,000 at one time. This has now deteriorated into about $17,000,000,000 which is inadequate. The problem is to restore the American gold hoard to at least $18,000,000,000 to protect the dollar, to bring back to the United States about $20,000,000,-000 of "hot money"-money out of circulation now resting in many parts of the world and to restore respect for our currency universally. This will not be achieved by a Task Force of a lot of professors who do not understand the operations of money

One such professor wrote me that nobody needs actual currency to move money from the United States to some other country because letters of credit and such devices move money, but the professor apparently did not understand the nature of "hot money," of untaxed money, of bootleggers and heroin dealers' money. He apparently does not understand the nature of the tax

havens and what they do to American currency. These are matters that the President must deal with if our gold is to be recaptured or if new gold is to be brought in. To announce a fixed date when the problem will be dealt with is to stimulate speculation, to raise the price of gold in the London market which means that more gold will seep out of the United States. The best way to handle a sensitive commodity like gold is to be absolutely silent about it-but absolutely. (Copyright, 1967. King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

'See, My Hands Are Clean'

nedy, a former PT boat commander, had occasion to jump on the Navy's neck within a few hours after he became commander-in-chief.

Kennedy read a report in this column that the Navy had sent lobbying propaganda, in the name of Adm. Arleigh Burke, to foreign naval attaches in Washington in an effort to enlist their aid in undercutting the proposed Symington defense reorganization plan. This amounted to using foreign nations to intervene in a purely domestic matter and a civilian matter at that. This is unprecedented.

President Kennedy is proud of his old outfit. But as commanderin-chief he made it clear that he wouldn't tolerate any hanky-panky between his admirals and foreign governments

At his direction, White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger phoned the Pentagon to find out whether this column had told the truth about the Navy's attempt to line up foreign governments against the reorganization plan. Art Sylvester, the new assistant defense secretary in charge of public affairs, promptly called the Navy's press chief. Rear Adm. Dan Smith, on the carpet.

Dutifully. Smith brought copies of the Navy propaganda that had been sent to foreign embassies and acknowledged that Adm. Arleigh Burke, the Navy chief, had

Battle Of Two Old Men The battle between two old men Sam Rayburn of Texas, 79, and Howard Smith of Virginia, 78, to see which will control the House of Representatives reaches its showdown vote today. Technically, the battle is over the right of the Rules Committee, of which Smith is chairman, to bottle up bills and prevent them from coming to the House floor for a full

In real fact, the battle is over the question of whether the Kennedy program shall be passed. If the bottleneck inside the Rules Committee is not broken there will be no federal aid to education, no minimum wage, no medical aid for the aged, no slum clearance, and no depressed areas

Inside fact is that Speaker Rayburn could have passed his revision of the Rules Committee if he had acted three weeks ago. But he procrastinated. Mr. Sam has the reputation for being tough, but is a softie at heart.

During his delay the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the American Farm Bureau, American Medical Association, National Association of Real Estate Boards. the National Lumber Association, and the power companies began pouring the heat on individual Congressmen.

Their argument was that the Rules Committee must have the power to block legislation in order to prevent Congress from passing a new civil rights bill. This was camouflage. Actually the rules committee has permitted two civil rights bills to pass. What the lobbyists were really aiming at was to block the Kennedy program. The AMA didn't want medical aid to the aged. The National Association of Real Estate Boards didn't want slum clearance. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce didn't want aid to education. And the National Lumber Association didn't want a minimum wage law.

To take one state, Alabama, as an example, here is what's been going on behind the scenes:

Scene No. 1 - Gov. John Patterson placed phone calls last week to three Alabama Congressmen - George Grant, George Andrews and Armistead Seldonurged them to support Speaker Rayburn in changing the Rules Committee. Not one of them would budge. They had been pressured by the "big mules" of Alabama, had promised to vote for bottling up bills inside the Rules Committee.

Scene No. 2 - Conscientious George Huddleston of Birmingham had decided to vote with Speaker Rayburn. But he's been whip-lashed by the "big mules" in Birmingham, now leans toward Rules Committee censorship. Scene No. 3 - Walter Randolph of the Alabama Farm Bureau wrote to Alabama Congressmen urging them to continue Rules Committee censorship. Replied Congressman Carl Elliott: "I voted for John F. Kennedy. I intend to vote for a rule which will permit the passage of his program." Scene No. 4 - Walter Malone. of the First National Bank of Dothan, Ala., who recently boasted that he had "never voted for a Democrat except in local elections since I started voting." wrote to Democratic Congressman Albert Rains - though he lives outside Malone's district - urging him to desert Sam Rayburn, Rains refused.

Multiply this type of pressure in every Southern state and many Northern states and you'll get an idea of the backstage lobbying battle to block the Kennedy program as the Rules Committee change comes up for a showdown vote today

to add two Democrats and only one Republican to the Rules Committee in order to break the Smith bottleneck, the two Democrats probably will be Carl Elliott of Jasper, Ala., and George Miller of Alemeda, Calif. Republican will be Katharine St George of Tuxedo Park, N. Y. She is Congresswoman for the Rockefeller family, and a moderate conservative. Rules Committee First Hurdle In New Frontier

WASHINGTON

Last Friday evening, the conservative Republican - Southern Democratic coalition had an expected total of 221 votes-or three votes more than a bare majority -against the enlargement of the House Rules Committee.

What the position will be when these words are published cannot be accurately predicted by anyone at all, including the leaders of this bitter fight in the House of Representatives. The House is not like the Senate, where hard counters can get a hard count. In the much larger house, there are at least thirty members with the approximate characteristics of fronds of seaweed, bending and swooping with every current that presses on them.

When there are thirty seaweedvotes the final result is always unpredictable, if those who seem to have the lead can only claim a margin of four votes. In the present case the result is extraunpredictable, since the currents tossing the seaweed have the force that is only generated by the greatest storms. One current may be described as the massed, concentrated power of American ultra-conservatism. The other current is the full power of a newly elected President

Superficially, the questions to be decided are simple enough. Will the veteran Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn of Texas, secure the enlargement of the Rules Committee which will give him a majority? Or will enlargement be refused, leaving control of the committee, and therefore control of the business of the House of Representatives, in the linked hands of House Minority Leader Charles Halleck and Rules Committee Chairman Howard K.

But the questions to be decided are not that simple, if looked at more closely. For the Republicans, for instance, the real question is pretty serious. Will the national election, if it is nationally of Rules Committee Chairman Smith

For President Kennedy, meanwhile, the real question involved in the Rules Committee fight is not just serious: it is almost a life-and-death question. The question for Kennedy, in fact, is whether even the bare, previously gnawed bones of the new administration's domestic program will have a reasonable chance to become law this year

The point is that even in the last session, measures like the depressed areas bill and the school construction bill commanded a House majority of only about twenty votes. But since the last session, the Democratic majority the idea of a Halleck-Goldwater in the House has dropped by party locked in a permanent em- twenty votes. The organ, one of the largest in the United States, is located in a Washington building that is to be torn down to make way for another government structure. conservative Republican-

The truth is that the whole Kennedy program can perhaps be blocked if the House votes against enlargement of the Rules Committee. This is, of course, exactly what Representatives Halleck and Smith are aiming for. Since the new President is entirely aware of how much is at stake, however, the White House has moved all its big battalions into the fight.

As these words are written, all the resources of Presidential authority have been mobilized, in the former manner of Franklin Roosevelt, in order to secure a favorable outcome. As these words are written, the President himself has not yet taken to the telephone, as the predecessor he most admires used to do when the outlook was really bad. Speaker Rayburn, long used to doing business in other ways, has advised against it. Yet this too may happen before the issue comes to a

Avoidance of a vote is the natural aim, both of the Southern Democrats and the conservative Republicans. The latter do not wish to dramatize their alliance. The former do not wish to be cut off from all patronage and all the other perquisites of members of the majority party-and the Southern Democrats know that Kennedy is quite grim enough to cut them off without mercy, if it suits him to do so. Speaker Rayburn has flirted with compromise solutions, so a record vote may perhaps be avoided.

But that seems unlikely, since the White House wants a showdown. The President thinks-not foolishly by all signs-that his majority in the country is greater than on election day. So he appears ready and even eager to fight it out in Congress, which may be closely balanced now but will reflect the country in the

The Premise

By John Crosby

Down at 154 Bleecker, a street which forms the twisting jugular vein of Greenwich Village, the very heart of Off Broadway, you'll find The Premise, which is a nightclub, a show, an idea - all rolled into one.

The premises of The Premise are a basement naturally. As George Kaufman has observed, the deeper into the bowels of the earth the customers go, the greater the thrill of discovery. The show (as opposed to the place) consists of four gifted and quickwitted performers - three fellows and a girl who can play a boy if she has to - who play sketches. blackouts, and improvisations with great relish and great speed. You're just savoring the one in front of you when the lights go out and they're dashing back with something fresh.

Since the revue has, alas, disappeared from the stage, since television's great satirist Sid Caesar has fled to Las Vegas, the last refuge of satire and the satiric sketch seems to be the supper club, and the Greenwich Village basement.

Chief perpetrator of this merriment is Theodore J. Flicker, who is director-producer-actor and emcee, and the subjects tackled in these brief flings are fresh. For instance, Mr. Flicker will remind us that little Caroline Kennedy suddenly appeared in her mother's shoes at one of her father's press conferences at home. Then, they'll do a skit with Joan Darling playing little Caroline and turning out to be the brains of the family, advising her father on who to appoint - Harvard professors "and stuff like that." It's a funny idea that it's Caroline, not old Joe, that's masterminding the family and it will probably be dropped if it gets stale. That's the great advantage of a show as fluid and flexible as this one. It can keep

The four players at The Premise, for instance, do a very funny skit of the American movies about Nazis made in 1943 as opposed to the movies made about Nazis now, As done then, every German is a schweinhund; now there's only one Nazi and all the other Germans deplore him as much as we do. There is very sharp, penetrating, aseptic humor about the Kennedys, that cruise

lation explosion. I found them all either hilarious or interesting or thoughtprovoking or all of those things - and they are performed at such blinding speed that you're constantly entertained. By the time you get down to see them, some of these topics might have been dropped for new However, there are some fairly permanent ones. The one about God and the magician trying to get into heaven (the magician has a better magic act) is great fun and also about as irreverent as you can get. Another skit I found delicious and complex and adult and very funny was that about a girl in analysis learning how to play chess and putting each move into psychiatric terms.

There are some weak spots but not many. Reading the first night reviews (it opened November) it seems the show has deepened and broadened and got more polished. There's an abundance of material I don't think the first nighters

Since Broadway has got so square - what few jokes you'll hear on Broadway sound thoroughly researched to be sure they won't offend anyone from Dubuque - the Greenwich Village basements, the Shelley Bermans, the Bob Newharts, the Nichols, and Mays are the only people who make comment on life around us. Especially life around us right

Some of these kids did this sort of thing originally at an enchanting little night spot called The Crystal Palace in St. Louis which I visited one night. The entertainment in saloons is acquiring a fresh impetus, a fresh cutting edge. The stimulation at The Premise is entirely cerebral; they serve nothing stronger than coffee and the prices are very reasonable. That probably means they'll be raided by the police or the fire department, both of which seem intent on closing up anything in the Village that isn't serving liquor.

It is surprising how many mothers of young tots prefer to do volunteer work for hospitals and charitable institutions. This is a wonderful idea but not when a disinterested third party is entrusted with the care of their offspring day after day. It is ironical that a mother who is needed at home spends the day assisting nurses and physicians in a children's pediatric ward.
